Ginseng

- Panax Ginseng (or Chinese Ginseng) is a plant whose roots are widely used for improving thinking, concentration, memory and mental efficiency, as well as physical stamina and endurance. It is also used as a general tonic against stress, and for assisting with depression, anxiety, Chronic Fatigue Syndrome, cystic fibrosis, diabetes, bleeding disorders, intestinal issues, sexual dysfunction and insomnia, as well as breast, ovarian, liver, lung and skin cancers.
- It has been used as a remedy for more than 2000 years. Approximately 6 million Americans use it regularly today.
- It is known as a general wellbeing remedy, due to its effects on many systems in the body.

Siberian Ginseng

The roots of Siberian Ginseng (or Eleuthero) have been used for centuries in Eastern countries, including China and Russia. Its active ingredients are believed to stimulate the immune system; thus, it has traditionally been used to prevent colds and flu, and to increase energy, longevity and vitality. Some tests have indicated its ability to lower blood sugar and combat herpes virus, as well as restore mental alertness and increase muscle strength.

American Ginseng

The chemical makeup of American Ginseng is similar to Panax Ginseng, although the type and ratio of ginsenosides varies between the herbs. Roots and root offshoots have traditionally been used by Native Americans to treat headaches, fever, indigestion and infertility. Studies have indicated that American Ginseng is an effective antioxidant, a boost to the immune system, and a help for inflammatory diseases. It has also been shown to lower blood sugar and inhibit tumor growth.

Royal Jelly

Royal Jelly is a substance made by nurse bees to help young bees develop. It is also fed to the queen bee for the duration of her very prolific lifetime (spanning 5-6 years).

Royal Jelly is highly concentrated with proteins, lipids, glucides, vitamins, hormones, enzymes, mineral substances, and vital factors that act as biocatalysts in processes of cell regeneration. It contains rich amounts of protein, vitamins B-1, B-2, B-6, C, E, niacin, pantothenic acid, biotin, inositol, and folic acid.

Its action is systemic, so Royal Jelly has been recommended for a wide variety of purposes including tiredness, anxiety states, bronchial function, liver and pancreas function, arthritis, gout, kidney disease, aging, nervous system function, skin disorders, and sexual rejuvenation.
